THOMSON REUTERS MYPAY SOLUTIONS® ANNOUNCES PARTNERSHIP WITH NATIONAL CRIME SEARCH

Offering a Comprehensive Background Check Service

Dexter, MI Jan. 16, 2009 —The Tax & Accounting business of Thomson Reuters announced today that its service-bureau payroll option, myPay Solutions, has entered into a preferred partnership with National Crime Search (NCS). NCS provides a full-scale background check service, while myPay Solutions offers complete payroll processing services. Leveraging the power of both systems provides accountants and their clients with an added advantage of ensuring a secure employee screening process.

"National Crime Search gives Thomson Reuters' payroll providers an outstanding array of background products providing their clients a simple, economic, yet robust tool. Clients can order packages or individual reports giving the client the ability to custom design to their individual needs," stated Jim Paille, Director of Business Strategy and Development, myPay Solutions at Thomson Reuters.

"We are proud to be working with Thomson Reuters to provide background screening services to their clients," stated Travis Fink, President, National Crime Search, Inc. "Thomson Reuters' customers will benefit by being able to offer tailored background solutions at an affordable price and access to National Crime Search's platform, providing both an Internet-based instant screening solution and an array of in-depth screening options."

myPay Solutions is a payroll processing service designed for accounting firms that want the benefits of being involved in their clients payroll without the hassle or liability of actually processing it. For more information on myPay Solutions, please visit CS.ThomsonReuters.com/myPaySolutions.

NCS is an advanced background check solution for small to mid-sized businesses. The system is designed to reduce security risks over time, lower theft, and decrease risk of fines and lawsuits from employees and vendors. For more information on NCS, please visit National Crime Search at NationalCrimeSearch.com.
