Registration Open for Thomson Reuters Eighth Annual Partner Summit Event Series

DEXTER, Mich., March 18, 2015 – Thomson Reuters today announced registration is open for its eighth annual Partner Summit event series. Limited to 60 attendees per city, these flagship thought leadership events feature individualized instruction from nationally recognized technology and workflow experts on big-picture aspects of running a dynamic practice.

The two-day strategic planning events are aimed at principals from tax and accounting firms nationwide. They offer a fresh approach that incorporates innovative new ideas while preserving the small, intimate format that has made them so popular since their introduction in 2007. Topics include: the client experience, customizing solutions, technology and workflow, monetizing solutions, and staffing your firm.

This year's expert speakers include:

- Paul Miller, Business by Design. Paul Miller offers proven insight on how practitioners can move out of the commodity trade and into the trusted client advisor business, an innovative billing methodology that quantifies the value delivered by firm services with the fee collected from the client, and entrepreneurial insight on how to better manage firm resources and improve client service.
- Andrew W. McCracken, CPA, MAcc, Thomson Reuters. Andrew McCracken shares his unique firm perspective and experience in the trenches to show firm leaders how to use technology tools and workflow best practices to increase workflow efficiency, use staff resources more effectively, and elevate client service.
- Therese M. Witherow, Thomson Reuters. Therese Witherow explains implementation strategies and proven approaches to initiating firm change while working with attendees to map out a customized action plan that will prepare them for a more progressive, client-focused future.

The Partner Summit event series offers attendees the opportunity to exchange ideas with other professionals in a small-group setting. Each attendee will take home a customized, actionable plan that enables attendees to position their businesses as breakthrough firms.
